This core value reflects the organization's commitment to community service, advocacy, and uplifting humanity. By promoting service, Alpha Kappa Alpha aims to contribute positively to society, addressing social issues and empowering individuals and communities to create meaningful change. This mission emphasizes the importance of altruism and the impact that collective efforts can have in improving the lives of others, which is a central tenet of the sorority's activities and programs. ### 2. What is the milestone for 50 years of membership called?

- D. Silver star

The milestone for 50 years of membership in Alpha Kappa Alpha (AKA) is referred to as the Gold milestone. This designation highlights the significance of reaching half a century of commitment and service to the sorority. Celebrating 50 years is a major achievement that reflects the enduring dedication and contributions of the member within the organization and the community. The Gold milestone serves as a symbol of the richness of experience and the invaluable legacy that members have built over five decades. It acknowledges not only longevity in membership but also the positive impact these members have made throughout their years of service. In contrast, other milestones signify different lengths of membership, such as 75 years (Diamond) or 25 years (Silver Star), but 50 years specifically is celebrated with the Gold designation.

3. Which officer is responsible for editing and publishing the chapter newsletter?

- A. The Basileus
- B. The Grammateus
- C. The Epistoleus
- D. The Anti-Basileus

The Epistoleus holds the responsibility for editing and publishing the chapter newsletter within an Alpha Kappa Alpha chapter. This role is crucial for maintaining communication among members, sharing updates, and disseminating important information about chapter activities and initiatives. The Epistoleus ensures that the newsletter is well-organized, accurately reflects the chapter's values and goals, and effectively engages members. By overseeing the creation and distribution of this publication, the Epistoleus plays a vital role in fostering a sense of community and keeping members informed. While the other officers have distinct responsibilities—such as the Basileus leading the chapter, the Grammateus handling records and minutes, and the Anti-Basileus serving as a support to the Basileus—the specific duty of managing the chapter newsletter falls under the purview of the Epistoleus.

As a former Supreme Basileus, she played a vital role in guiding the direction of the sorority and has been involved in various initiatives that promote community service and leadership development among members. Nellie May Quander, while a notable figure in the sorority's past, was the first Supreme Basileus and has since passed away, marking a historical rather than current influence. Catherine D. Brown and Mary Frances Jones also do not fit the criteria of being currently living former Supreme Basileus as of 2023, further supporting why Norma Solomon White is the correct answer in this context. Her legacy continues to impact the sorority and its members today.*

The Philactic Chairman is responsible for educating and guiding chapter members on implementing programs that align with AKA's mission and goals, making this position crucial for promoting the values and initiatives of the organization at the regional level. The other positions mentioned, such as Regional Director, Supreme Basileus, and Protocol Officer, while integral to the organization in their respective capacities, do not accurately describe Ms. Jackson's specific role in the South Atlantic Region. Each of these titles carries distinct responsibilities and jurisdictions within the sorority, highlighting the collaborative structure that supports AKA's mission.*

7. Which title corresponds to the role of the Treasurer in Alpha Kappa Alpha?

- A. Tamiouchos
- B. Pecunious Grammateus
- C. Grammateus
- D. Epistoleus

The title that corresponds to the role of the Treasurer in Alpha Kappa Alpha is Tamiouchos. This title is derived from ancient Greek, meaning "treasurer" or "one who manages the finances." In the context of the sorority, the Tamiouchos is responsible for overseeing the financial activities, managing funds, and ensuring that all financial transactions are recorded accurately. This role is crucial for the fiscal health of the organization and typically involves budgeting, financial reporting, and maintaining financial records in accordance with the sorority's bylaws and regulations. The other roles, while significant within the organization, serve different functions. For example, the Grammateus is essentially the secretary responsible for documentation and correspondence, while the Pecunious Grammateus might assist with financial duties in some contexts, but does not embody the primary role of financial oversight like the Tamiouchos. The Epistoleus, on the other hand, is primarily responsible for handling the sorority's communications. Understanding these distinctions is important for recognizing the specific responsibilities associated with each leadership position within Alpha Kappa Alpha.

8. What symbol represents the values upheld by Alpha Kappa Alpha?

- A. The pinky raise
- B. The sorority shield
- C. The color pink
- D. The dove

The symbol that represents the values upheld by Alpha Kappa Alpha is the dove. In the context of the sorority, the dove is a powerful emblem of peace, strength, and purity, embodying the ideals and mission of AKA. The dove's significance is rooted in its representation of love and harmony, which are foundational principles for the organization. While other options may carry significance in different contexts or might be associated with personal expressions within the sorority, the dove is specifically recognized for encapsulating the ethos and collective values of Alpha Kappa Alpha. It serves as a reminder of the sorority's commitment to service, sisterhood, and uplifting communities.

9. What term is used for the initiation ceremony of an Alpha Kappa Alpha member?

- A. The induction ceremony
- B. The initiation process
- C. The membership affirmation
- D. The welcome ritual

The term used for the initiation ceremony of an Alpha Kappa Alpha member is "the initiation process." This term specifically refers to the structured and significant events that members undergo as they officially join the sorority. The initiation process encompasses a series of activities, rituals, and teachings designed to embody the values and traditions of Alpha Kappa Alpha, marking the transition from a potential member to an initiated member of the organization. This process is imbued with symbolism, emphasizing commitment, sisterhood, and the responsibilities that come with membership. The other terms, while related to the theme of membership, do not accurately describe the official ceremony. "The induction ceremony" might imply a more general welcoming into a group, rather than the specific rituals of initiation that are unique to Alpha Kappa Alpha. "The membership affirmation" suggests a reaffirmation of values rather than the initial ceremony of joining. "The welcome ritual," while it may connote a greeting, lacks the formal context of initiation that is essential in sorority traditions.

10. What is the motto of Alpha Kappa Alpha?

- A. Empowerment Through Education
- B. Service to All Mankind
- C. By Culture and By Merit
- D. Unity for Progress

The motto of Alpha Kappa Alpha is "Service to All Mankind." This phrase encapsulates the organization's commitment to serving the community and uplifting those around them through various outreach initiatives and programs. It reflects the core values of altruism and service that are fundamental to the sorority's mission and goals. While other phrases such as "By Culture and By Merit" may represent guiding principles or focused efforts within the organization, they do not serve as the official motto. The emphasis on service highlights the overarching aim of Alpha Kappa Alpha to make a positive impact on society and promote the well-being of all individuals, making it a powerful and defining statement for the sorority. This motto fosters a sense of purpose and unity among members as they engage in community service and support one another in their endeavors.
