Explanations

1. What defines a firearm under Arizona law?

- A. Any device designed to expel a projectile by explosive, gas, or mechanical means
- B. Only devices firing bullets at a caliber above .22
- C. Devices capable of automatic fire
- D. Any mechanism that can be adapted for the expelling of projectiles

In Arizona, a firearm is defined as any device designed to expel a projectile by explosive, gas, or mechanical means. This definition is broad and includes various types of firearms, including handguns, rifles, shotguns, and other similar devices. This definition is crucial in understanding the scope of Arizona gun laws and regulations. Options B, C, and D are not accurate definitions of a firearm under Arizona law. Option B only refers to devices firing bullets above a certain caliber, which is not a comprehensive definition. Option C mentions devices capable of automatic fire, which is a characteristic of specific types of firearms but does not encompass all firearms. Option D states devices that can be adapted for the expelling of projectiles, which is too vague and not specific enough to define a firearm accurately in the context of Arizona law.

2. What must a non-resident of Arizona do to legally carry a concealed weapon in the state?

- A. Obtain an Arizona driver's license
- B. Obtain a special non-resident permit
- C. Ensure their home state's permit is recognized by Arizona
- D. Nothing, as Arizona allows constitutional carry

To legally carry a concealed weapon in Arizona, a non-resident can utilize their home state's concealed carry permit, provided that permit is recognized by Arizona. Arizona law recognizes permits that are validly issued by other states, which allows non-residents to carry concealed weapons without needing to obtain an Arizona-specific permit, as long as they adhere to the rules set forth by their home state and any applicable federal regulations. The concept of constitutional carry, where individuals can carry without a permit, does not apply to non-residents in the same manner as residents. As such, a non-resident must ensure their permit is recognized, rather than seeking a new permit or other forms of identification that would not fulfill the legal requirement for carrying concealed in Arizona.

3. Is it legal to carry a concealed weapon in commercial establishments that serve alcohol in Arizona?

- A. Yes, if not consuming alcohol
- B. No
- C. Yes, with special permission
- D. Yes, if concealed carry permit is shown

Arizona law allows individuals with a concealed carry permit to carry a weapon in commercial establishments that serve alcohol as long as they are not consuming alcohol. Option B is incorrect because Arizona law prohibits carrying a concealed weapon in establishments that primarily serve alcohol, such as bars. Option C is incorrect because special permission is not required, as long as the individual has a valid concealed carry permit. Option D is incorrect because simply showing a concealed carry permit is not sufficient; the individual must also not be consuming alcohol.

4. Who is prohibited from owning a gun in Arizona?

- A. Convicted felons
- B. First-time offenders
- C. People without a hunting license
- D. Non-residents

In Arizona, it is illegal for convicted felons to own a gun. This is because felons have been found guilty of committing a serious crime and therefore are not trusted to responsibly possess a firearm. Options B, C, and D are incorrect because they are not restricted from owning a gun in Arizona. First-time offenders, people without a hunting license, and non-residents all may legally own a gun in Arizona as long as they follow state and federal laws.

5. What is the legal blood alcohol content limit for carrying a firearm in Arizona?

- A. 0.00%
- B. 0.08%
- C. 0.05%
- D. There is no specified limit

The legal blood alcohol content limit for carrying a firearm in Arizona is indeed set at 0.00%. This indicates that individuals are not permitted to carry a firearm if they have consumed any alcohol. Arizona law emphasizes the importance of being sober when handling firearms to ensure safety and responsible usage. This strict guideline is aimed at preventing any impairment that could lead to unsafe handling or decision-making. Understanding this law reflects Arizona's commitment to promoting safe gun ownership and reducing the risk of accidents that could arise from alcohol consumption while carrying a firearm. Other options suggest varying levels of permissible alcohol, which do not align with the state's stringent regulations regarding firearms and alcohol consumption.

6. Is a permit required to carry a concealed firearm in Arizona?

- A. Yes, for everyone
- B. Yes, but only for non-residents
- C. No, but there are exceptions
- D. No permit is required at all

In Arizona, a permit is generally not required to carry a concealed firearm, as stated in the Arizona Revised Statutes, Section 13-3112. However, there are certain exceptions to this rule, such as for individuals who are under the age of 21, have certain criminal backgrounds, or do not meet the residency requirements. Therefore, while a permit may not be required for most individuals, there are still exceptions and it is important to be aware of them. Options A, B, and D are incorrect because they state that a permit is required in some form, which is not entirely accurate based on Arizona's laws. However, these options do touch on the potential need for a permit for certain individuals or situations, albeit not for "everyone" or "no one" in general. Option D is also incorrect because it suggests that no permit is required at all, which is only partially true.

7. Which of the following firearms is illegal to possess in Arizona?

- A. Fully automatic firearms
- B. Suppressors
- C. Sawed-off shotguns
- D. None of the above

In Arizona, it is legal to possess all listed firearms, including fully automatic firearms, suppressors, and sawed-off shotguns. Therefore, the correct answer is D, none of the above. However, it is important to note that there may be certain restrictions, such as requiring a federal firearms license and complying with certain storage and transportation laws, for some of these firearms. It is always important to research and understand state and federal laws when owning and possessing firearms to ensure compliance with regulations.

8. Is it legal to carry a firearm into a bank in Arizona?

- A. Yes, if concealed
- B. Yes, unless there is a sign prohibiting it
- C. No
- D. Only with permission from the bank

In Arizona, it is generally legal to carry a firearm into a bank, provided that there isn't a sign prohibiting firearms. Arizona law allows individuals to carry firearms openly or concealed, with certain exceptions based on private property rights. If a bank chooses to prohibit firearms on its premises, it must post a sign indicating such restrictions. Thus, if no sign is present, it is permissible to carry a firearm into the bank. It's important to be aware that while the law allows this, practical considerations like bank policies and ensuring the safety and comfort of others should also be taken into account when deciding to carry a firearm in such settings.

9. Is it legal to carry a concealed weapon on college campuses in Arizona?

- A. Yes, without any restrictions
- B. No, it is strictly prohibited
- C. Yes, but only with special permission from the institution
- D. Yes, but only for individuals with a permit

Carrying a concealed weapon on college campuses in Arizona is strictly prohibited. While it is true that individuals can receive permits to carry concealed weapons, these permits are not valid on college campuses in Arizona. Additionally, college campuses are considered "gun-free zones" which means that even permit holders are not allowed to carry firearms on these premises. Special permission from the institution is also not a viable option as most colleges have strict policies against allowing weapons on their campuses. Therefore, option B is the correct answer.

10. Can non-residents apply for a concealed carry permit in Arizona?

- A. Yes, if they meet the same requirements as residents
- B. No, only Arizona residents can apply
- C. Yes, but only if their home state recognizes Arizona's permit
- D. Yes, but they must first pass an additional background check

Arizona does allow non-residents to apply for a concealed carry permit. However, non-residents must meet the same requirements as residents in order to be eligible for a permit. Option B is incorrect because it states that only Arizona residents can apply, which is not true. Option C is incorrect because it states that non-residents can only apply if their home state recognizes Arizona's permit, which is not a requirement. Option D is incorrect because it suggests that non-residents must pass an additional background check, when in fact they must pass the same background check as residents. Therefore, only option A correctly explains that non-residents can apply if they meet the same requirements as residents.
