1. Start with a Diagnostic Review

Skim through the questions to get a sense of what you know and what you need to focus on. Your goal is to identify knowledge gaps early.

2. Study in Short, Focused Sessions

Break your study time into manageable blocks (e.g. 30 - 45 minutes). Review a handful of questions, reflect on the explanations.

3. Learn from the Explanations

After answering a question, always read the explanation, even if you got it right. It reinforces key points, corrects misunderstandings, and teaches subtle distinctions between similar answers.

4. Track Your Progress

Use bookmarks or notes (if reading digitally) to mark difficult questions. Revisit these regularly and track improvements over time.

5. Simulate the Real Exam

Once you're comfortable, try taking a full set of questions without pausing. Set a timer and simulate test-day conditions to build confidence and time management skills.

6. Repeat and Review

Don't just study once, repetition builds retention. Re-attempt questions after a few days and revisit explanations to reinforce learning. Pair this guide with other Examzify tools like flashcards, and digital practice tests to strengthen your preparation across formats.

Explanations

1. Which role is commonly responsible for greeting clients and answering phones in an office?

- A. Vet
- B. Receptionist
- C. Postal Worker
- D. V-E-T

Greeting clients and answering phones are front-desk tasks. The role focused on those duties is the receptionist, whose main job is to create a welcoming first impression, handle incoming calls, transfer or route inquiries, and manage the front office flow. A vet, on the other hand, is a medical professional who treats animals, not a general office receptionist. A postal worker handles mail and deliveries, which isn't about greeting clients. The variant spelling of vet refers to the same veterinary role, not to front-desk duties. So the receptionist is the best fit for greeting clients and answering phones.

2. Which profession uses the sign 'Wood + agent'?

- A. Florist
- B. Carpenter
- C. Teacher
- D. Student

In ASL, many occupations are formed by pairing a sign for a material or tool with a sign that means "person who does," so the overall sign points to the job of someone who works with that material. When you see wood combined with the sign for an agent/worker, it signals someone whose work is with wood—i.e., a carpenter. The other options don't involve wood or the idea of a wood-based trade (a florist signs around flowers, a teacher around teaching, a student around studying), so they don't fit the same pattern.

3. Which sign describes the profession Engineer?

- A. Sign 'Measure' Dominant hand wiggles up and down
- B. Wood + agent
- C. Flower + agent
- D. Teach + agent

In ASL, signs for occupations often connect to what the job emphasizes. Engineer is tied to measurement, design, and precision. The sign for engineer uses the measure gesture—the dominant hand makes a quick wiggle as if measuring with a tool—placing focus on calculation and planning, which fits what engineers do. That is why this option best represents the profession. The other options point to different trades: a wood-based sign corresponds to carpenter, a sign involving flowers points to florist, and teach plus agent signals teacher. These are distinct occupations and don't capture the engineering emphasis on measurement and design.

4. Which occupation's sign is 'Writing on a pad of paper' plus agent?

A. Lawyer

B. Mechanic

C. Army

D. Author/Writer/Journalist

In ASL, showing a profession that centers on a specific activity is often done by signing the action and adding an agent marker to indicate who performs it. The sign you described uses the action WRITE on a pad of paper, followed by an agent sign. That combination communicates “the person who writes” in a professional sense. Writing on a pad provides the context that this is about drafting text, not just casual writing. Among the options, professions like author, writer, or journalist are defined by this core activity of writing, so this sign best matches that occupation. The other options—mechanic, army, or lawyer—are tied to different activities and wouldn't be conveyed by the act of writing with an agent.

5. Principal is represented by which sign decomposition?

A. Program + Agent

B. Programmer

C. program (CL:P up and over CL:B) + agent

D. Programmer + Agent

This item tests how a sign can express a role by combining a base concept with a classifier that shows who is in charge. For principal, the standard form starts with the base sign for program to indicate the domain, then adds a specific agent classifier to show the person who leads that program. The move where the P-hand (CL:P) travels up and over the B-hand (CL:B) signals a person acting in charge, separating the agent from the program and marking leadership. Put together, this creates the meaning “the principal—the person in charge of the program.” If you instead used a plain combination of program and a generic agent, you wouldn't convey the leadership aspect as clearly. And signs like programmer refer to a different occupation entirely, so they don't match the intended sense of principal.

6. The sign for Pilot can be described as which option?

A. Air + Travel

B. Travel + Air

C. Flight + Sign

D. Pilot

In ASL, many occupation signs are lexical names for the job themselves, not phrases describing the activity. The sign for Pilot is an established single sign that directly names the occupation, so it's used to say “I'm a pilot” or talk about pilots in general. Describing the sign as air plus travel would convey the idea of air travel or flying, not the job title. Likewise, flight plus sign isn't the conventional way to name this profession. Memorizing the standalone sign for Pilot lets you communicate the occupation clearly and efficiently.

7. Which occupation is associated with the sign 'B-A-N-K T-E-L-L-E-R'?

- A. Entrepreneur
- B. Judge
- C. Funeral Director
- D. Bank Teller

When a sign is created by spelling the letters of a job title, it communicates that exact occupation. The sequence here spells out “bank teller,” which is the person who works at a bank and handles customer transactions. So, this sign represents the occupation of a bank teller. Other options correspond to different roles with their own signs or spellings and don’t match this bank-teller spelling.

8. Which occupation is associated with the sign meaning 'practice'?

- A. Economist
- B. Trainer
- C. Volunteer
- D. Housekeeper

The sign meaning “practice” is most closely tied to roles that revolve around teaching and guiding others to repeat skills. A trainer’s work centers on helping people develop abilities through practice and drills, so the sign for practice naturally fits that job. Economists focus on data and analysis, volunteers provide service without a primary emphasis on repeated skill-building, and housekeepers concentrate on cleaning tasks; none of these occupations center on practice in the same way. So, the trainer is the best match.

9. Which occupation handles customer transactions and inquiries in a bank?

- A. Sales Person
- B. Housekeeper
- C. Bank Teller
- D. Economist

Handling routine customer transactions and inquiries in a bank is done by the bank teller. The teller is the frontline staff at the counter who processes deposits and withdrawals, cashes checks, counts and handles cash, verifies identities, and answers common questions about accounts and services. This role centers on direct, everyday banking tasks with customers. Other options don’t fit as closely: a sales person focuses on selling products, a housekeeper handles cleaning duties, and an economist studies economic trends rather than working at the counter with customers.

10. Which occupation is described by the clue 'interpret (dominant hand wiggles up and down)'?

- A. Doctor
- B. Pharmacist
- C. Designer
- D. Interpreter

This clue centers on the sign for interpreting. In ASL, the act of interpreting is shown with a dominant-hand motion that wiggles up and down, signaling the process of translating meaning between languages. That specific sign points to the occupation of an interpreter—someone who interprets between languages. The other jobs have distinct signs tied to their roles (for example, medical signs for doctor or medication-related signs for pharmacist), so they don't match the clue describing the act of interpreting. So the occupation described by the clue is the interpreter (even though the spelling in the option might appear as Interpreter).
