1. What is the minimum age to possess and transport a handgun in Idaho without supervision?

- A. 18
- B. 19
- C. 21
- D. 16

In Idaho, the minimum age to possess and transport a handgun without supervision is indeed 18 years old. This regulation aligns with the federal standard that allows individuals 18 and older to own firearms, including handguns, and it is stipulated in Idaho law. Individuals who are 18 years old can legally transport a handgun in a private vehicle or on their person, provided that they are not in a prohibited location and are not engaging in unlawful activities. Younger individuals, such as those who are 16 or 17, must typically have adult supervision to possess or transport a handgun legally. Additionally, the age of 21 is often referenced in the context of purchasing firearms from licensed dealers, but this does not apply to possession and transportation by individuals who are 18 and older in Idaho. Therefore, the correct age to meet the criteria specified in the question is indeed 18.

2. What is the minimum age to purchase a handgun from a licensed dealer in Idaho?

- A. 18 years
- B. 19 years
- C. 21 years
- D. 25 years

In Idaho, the minimum age to purchase a handgun from a licensed dealer is 21 years. This regulation is in line with federal law, which establishes the same age requirement for the purchase of handguns. Federal law stipulates that individuals must be 21 to buy a handgun from a dealer, while states like Idaho have adopted this standard, ensuring consistency with national regulations. Understanding the age limits for purchasing firearms is crucial in promoting responsible gun ownership and adhering to the laws designed to foster public safety. This particular age requirement is intended to prevent access to handguns by younger individuals who may not have the maturity or experience necessary to handle such powerful weapons responsibly.

3. Are magazines with a capacity greater than 10 rounds legal in Idaho?

- A. No, they are banned
- B. Yes, but only for law enforcement
- C. Yes, there are no restrictions on magazine capacity
- D. Yes, but a special permit is required

In Idaho, there are no restrictions on magazine capacity, making it entirely legal to possess magazines that hold more than 10 rounds. This lack of regulation allows gun owners significant flexibility in choosing their firearms and magazines without concerns about legal limitations on capacity. This is in contrast to some other states that have imposed restrictions on the maximum number of rounds a magazine can hold, often in response to public safety concerns. However, Idaho's laws favor the rights of citizens to possess and utilize firearms with varying magazine capacities. Understanding this aspect of Idaho law is crucial for responsible gun ownership, as it emphasizes the importance of being aware of and compliant with state-specific firearm regulations, ensuring safety while exercising Second Amendment rights.

4. When is it legal to carry a concealed weapon without a permit in Idaho?

- A. Inside city limits
- B. Outside city limits
- C. In a vehicle
- D. On one's own property

In Idaho, it is legal to carry a concealed weapon without a permit on one's own property. This means that carrying a concealed weapon anywhere else, whether inside or outside city limits or in a vehicle, requires a concealed carry permit. Therefore, options A, B, and C are incorrect.

5. Is open carry of firearms legal in Idaho?

- A. Yes, without any permit
- B. No
- C. Only with a concealed weapons permit
- D. Only outside city limits

In Idaho, open carry of firearms is indeed legal without the need for a permit. This means that individuals can carry their firearms visibly in public spaces without any regulatory restrictions requiring permits or licenses. The law supports the individual's right to openly bear arms as part of the Second Amendment rights. While there are considerations regarding where one can carry openly, such as certain government buildings or private properties that prohibit firearms, the general principle remains that open carry is permitted statewide without needing a concealed weapons permit. This understanding reflects Idaho's approach to personal freedoms concerning gun ownership and usage.

6. In Idaho, what is the minimum age to possess and transport a handgun without parental supervision?

- A. 18 years old
- B. 21 years old
- C. 16 years old
- D. 19 years old

In Idaho, the law permits individuals to possess and transport a handgun without parental supervision starting at the age of 18. This aligns with the state laws that recognize 18 as the legal age for many responsibilities and rights, including the possession of handguns. It reflects the understanding that individuals at this age have reached a level of maturity where they can handle firearms responsibly. Other ages are not correct as they do not align with the legal age stipulated in Idaho law for this activity. For instance, individuals younger than 18 cannot legally possess or transport a handgun independently.

7. What is Idaho's stance on the private sale of firearms between individuals?

- A. Background checks are required
- B. No background check is required
- C. Sales are only allowed through licensed dealers
- D. A permit is required for the sale

Idaho does not require a background check for private sales of firearms between individuals. This means that a person can buy a firearm from another individual without having to undergo a background check. The other options mentioned are incorrect because they all involve some level of regulation or requirement for the sale of firearms. Option A states that background checks are required, while option C states that sales are only allowed through licensed dealers. Option D states that a permit is required for the sale of firearms. None of these regulations are in place in Idaho for private sales between individuals.

8. Is it legal to carry a concealed weapon in a vehicle without a permit in Idaho?

- A. Yes, in all vehicles
- B. No, not without a concealed carry permit
- C. Yes, but only in vehicles registered in Idaho
- D. Yes, but only if the firearm is unloaded

In Idaho, individuals are permitted to carry a concealed weapon in a vehicle without a concealed carry permit. This law is quite permissive and allows for greater freedom in the context of self-defense and personal protection. The legality of carrying a concealed weapon in a vehicle applies to all vehicles, meaning there's no requirement for the vehicle to be registered in Idaho, nor is there a stipulation regarding whether the firearm must be unloaded. This reflects Idaho's overall commitment to individual rights regarding firearm ownership and concealed carry laws. The other options reflect misunderstandings about the legal framework surrounding firearm carrying in Idaho. For example, asserting the necessity of a concealed carry permit or restrictions based on vehicle registration misinterprets the broader allowances the law affords. Furthermore, requiring the firearm to be unloaded would not apply in this context, as the law permits the carrying of loaded firearms as well.

9. What is necessary to purchase a handgun from a licensed firearms dealer in Idaho?

- A. Idaho state identification
- B. Proof of Idaho residency
- C. Background check through the NCIS
- D. All of the above

To purchase a handgun from a licensed firearms dealer in Idaho, all the listed requirements must be met. Idaho law mandates that purchasers present a valid form of identification, which typically includes an Idaho state identification card or a driver's license. This ensures that the buyer is legally able to own a firearm and meets the basic identification requirements. Additionally, proof of Idaho residency is crucial because it confirms that the buyer resides in the state where the purchase is being made. This is particularly important for state-specific laws regarding firearm ownership and restrictions. A background check through the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) is also a mandatory procedure when purchasing a firearm from a licensed dealer. This check helps to ensure that the buyer is not prohibited from owning a firearm due to factors such as felony convictions or mental health issues. Together, these elements are designed to help maintain public safety and ensure compliance with both state and federal regulations regarding firearm purchases. Therefore, the combination of Idaho state identification, proof of residency, and a successful NICS background check is necessary to complete the purchase of a handgun from a licensed dealer.

10. Which of the following is a requirement for storing firearms in a home with children in Idaho?

- A. Using a gun safe
- B. Using trigger locks
- C. Secure storage away from accessible areas

D. There is no specific legal requirement

This answer may seem counterintuitive, but in Idaho, there is actually no specific legal requirement for storing firearms in a home with children. However, it is still strongly recommended that firearms be stored safely and securely, away from any accessible areas, in order to prevent accidents. Both options A and B (using a gun safe and trigger locks) are great ways to secure firearms and should still be followed even though they are not legally required. It is important for parents to take responsibility for their own safety and the safety of their children by properly storing and securing firearms.
