How to Use This Guide

This guide is designed to help you study more effectively and approach your exam with confidence. Whether you're reviewing for the first time or doing a final refresh, here's how to get the most out of your Examzify study guide:

1. Start with a Diagnostic Review

Skim through the questions to get a sense of what you know and what you need to focus on. Your goal is to identify knowledge gaps early.

2. Study in Short, Focused Sessions

Break your study time into manageable blocks (e.g. 30 – 45 minutes). Review a handful of questions, reflect on the explanations.

3. Learn from the Explanations

After answering a question, always read the explanation, even if you got it right. It reinforces key points, corrects misunderstandings, and teaches subtle distinctions between similar answers.

4. Track Your Progress

Use bookmarks or notes (if reading digitally) to mark difficult questions. Revisit these regularly and track improvements over time.

5. Simulate the Real Exam

Once you're comfortable, try taking a full set of questions without pausing. Set a timer and simulate test-day conditions to build confidence and time management skills.

6. Repeat and Review

Don't just study once, repetition builds retention. Re-attempt questions after a few days and revisit explanations to reinforce learning. Pair this guide with other Examzify tools like flashcards, and digital practice tests to strengthen your preparation across formats.

1. When will the committee refund the examination fee?

- A. Only if the application is rejected by the committee or withdrawn by the applicant within 14 days after receipt
- B. If the applicant fails to sit for the examination
- C. The committee never refunds examination fees
- D. The fee is refunded automatically after 30 days

Understanding when refunds are allowed hinges on timing and outcome. The policy specifies that the examination fee is refunded only if the application is rejected by the committee or if the applicant withdraws within 14 days after receipt. This creates a narrow window tied to the status of the application, not to later events. If the applicant does not sit for the exam, the fee isn't refunded because the service to administer the exam has already been provided. A blanket rule of never refunding, or refunding automatically after 30 days, doesn't match the stated policy. So the only scenario that justifies a refund is rejection or withdrawal within the 14-day window.

2. What happens if the person who holds a trainee license does not take the next examination after the date of issue, according to the licensing rules, assuming no good cause is shown?

- A. The license will be renewed
- B. The license will not be renewed unless you can show good cause
- C. The license will be revoked
- D. No effect

When you hold a trainee license, renewal is conditioned on taking the next required examination by the specified date. If the person does not sit for that exam and no good cause is shown, there is no basis to renew the trainee license. The rules are meant to ensure progress toward full licensure, so skipping the next exam without an approved reason means renewal cannot be granted. Therefore, the license will not be renewed unless good cause is shown. The other options imply outcomes (renewal, revocation, or no effect) that don't align with the requirement to take the next examination to maintain eligibility.

3. What is the biennial renewal fee?

- A. 100
- B. 50
- C. 180
- D. 30

The biennial renewal fee is the amount required to renew your New Jersey hearing aid dispenser license every two years. The Board sets this fee at 180 dollars. This amount covers the cost of administering licensure and regulatory oversight, and renewal must be completed by the expiration date to keep the license active. The other numbers don't match the Board's current biennial renewal amount.

4. Which measure may be necessary in the hearing test?

- A. SRT
- B. MCL
- C. TD
- D. speech discrimination

Understanding speech at a comfortable listening level is essential because it reveals how well a person can actually comprehend spoken language, not just hear sounds. A speech-discrimination (word recognition) test measures this functional ability by asking the person to identify or repeat words or sentences at a given loudness. This information is critical for deciding whether amplification will meaningfully improve communication and for setting expectations and counseling. Pure-tone thresholds or loudness measures (like the level at which speech is heard or is most comfortable) show detection and comfort, but they don't tell you how well speech understanding will translate in real life. So, the discrimination measure is often necessary to gauge practical benefit from hearing devices and to tailor the plan accordingly.

5. If the applicant fails to sit for an examination, what can happen?

- A. One time only, the fee may be credited towards the next examination
- B. The fee is forfeited
- C. The applicant must reapply and pay a new fee
- D. The committee may waive the fee

When a candidate misses the scheduled exam, the rule allows the examination fee to be credited toward the next attempt, and this credit can be used only once. In practice, you don't lose the payment entirely—you apply that paid amount to your next exam fee. After this one-time credit, any further missed exams would require paying the fee again for subsequent attempts. This approach helps accommodate a single scheduling issue without penalizing the applicant. The other options don't fit because there's no automatic forfeiture, no mandatory new fee with a fresh application beyond the credit, and no provision for a fee waiver.

6. Within how many days must a licensee notify the committee of a change in residential or business address?

- A. 30 days
- B. 7 days
- C. 14 days
- D. 60 days

Keeping contact information current with the committee is essential so you receive notices, renewals, and any disciplinary communications without delay. The rule requires you to notify the committee of a change in residential or business address within seven days of the change. This short window ensures important communications reach you promptly and your records stay accurate. If you wait longer, you risk missing notices or deadlines, which could lead to penalties or other licensee concerns. To stay compliant, submit a written update with your new addresses and how you can be contacted as soon as you know them.

7. What is the initial license fee if paid during the first year of the renewal period?

- A. 180
- B. 90
- C. 110
- D. 50

The key idea is the fee schedule for on-time renewal. When you pay the license renewal during the first year of the renewal period, the amount due is the standard on-time renewal fee, which is 180 dollars. The other numbers reflect different timing or penalties, not the base on-time payment. So 180 is the correct amount for paying in the first year.

8. Which conditions define when the committee may issue a temporary license?

- A. Has not previously held a training permit
- B. Has not previously taken the licensing examination
- C. Both A and B
- D. Neither A nor B

Temporary licensure is meant to bridge the early stage of fully becoming licensed. The committee will issue a temporary license only if the applicant has not previously held a training permit and has not previously taken the licensing examination. Meeting both conditions shows the applicant is just starting the licensure path, allowing supervised practice while they complete the required steps. If either condition isn't met—someone has previously held a training permit or has previously taken the licensing exam—the temporary license would not be available. Remember, a temporary license is limited in scope and duration and is not a substitute for passing the exam and obtaining full licensure.

9. Why must the supervising licensee's name and title appear on advertising materials?

- A. To identify the supervising licensee responsible for the content
- B. To advertise market share
- C. To display the office hours
- D. To show testimonials

This question centers on accountability in advertising. Requiring the supervising licensee's name and title on advertising materials makes it clear who is legally responsible for the content and for the services advertised. In supervised practice, the supervisor oversees the work of others and is the person ultimately accountable to regulators and to patients. By displaying the supervisor's identity and credential, the public can know who is in charge, who to contact with questions or complaints, and who would be liable if the ad or the services were improper or misleading. This helps ensure the advertising complies with regulatory rules and protects consumers from misrepresentation. The other options don't serve that purpose. Displaying market share, office hours, or testimonials relates to marketing tactics, not who is responsible for the content or for oversight of the advertised services.

10. Who may request access to records maintained for fitting and dispensing hearing aids?

A. The committee

B. The licensing board

C. The patient

D. The public

Regulatory oversight gives the committee the authority to request and review records kept for fitting and dispensing hearing aids as part of enforcing rules and investigating complaints. This access helps ensure that practitioners are complying with statutes, standards, and board regulations, and it supports the ability to take corrective action if needed. The patient can generally request access to their own records, but that's a separate right tied to patient privacy and ownership of their file, not the ongoing regulatory access described here. The public doesn't have automatic access to confidential records, and while the licensing board oversees the profession, the specific investigative and enforcement powers are exercised through the committee.
